

built by the Masons) in its place. In 1971, Kahane transferred his group from its U.S. base to Jerusalem, at Kook's request.

Stanley Goldfoot, the former aide to Lord Charteris, the onetime head of the British Arab Bureau and Private Secretary to Queen Elizabeth, is the other handler of the sects. Lord Peter Carrington, the late Lord Harlech, and former MI6 Mid-east chief Sir Nicholas Elliot, have been in overall charge of the project.

Harat ul Ansar (HUA): Originally founded in 1980 to fight in Afghanistan, HUA is one of numerous Afghan mujahideen groups created and armed by Thatcher and Bush. Since the Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan, the group, which is made up of Pakistanis, Algerians, Lebanese, Syrians, Egyptians, and other nationals, has concentrated on fomenting insurrection in Indian Kashmir. Major actions include a February 1995 car bomb in Jammu, India, which killed 17 people, and numerous kidnappings of Indian officials.

The group is closely allied with Sipah e Sahaba, another Afghan mujahideen sect, which has been responsible for massacres of Pakistani Shiites. In early 1995, Sipah e Sahaba leader Zia Rehman Farooqi travelled to Britain for money and recruits, claiming afterward to the Telegraph, that he had gained 40,000 recruits at British rallies.

The Afghan mujahideen terrorist labor pool, of which HUA is just one example, was created under the direction of Viscount Cranborne, Leader of the House of Lords, who oversaw the Afghan War project, aided by MI6 Mideast hand Sir Nicholas Bethell; former Foreign Office head Lord Morrison of Lambeth; and Winston Churchill III.

Other British-aided terrorist organizations composed of or led by Afghan mujahideen veterans, include the above-cited Islamic Group and Islamic Jihad of Egypt, the Armed Islamic Group of Algeria, and the Abu Sayyaf group of the Philippines, which has also been placed on the State Department terror list.

Sendero Luminoso: Since the early 1980s, Peru's Shining Path has been leading an "Indian liberation" war, which has killed over 25,000 Peruvians. The group's most important foreign headquarters are in London, headed by Adolfo Héctor Olaechea, who uses a July 1992 letter from Buckingham Palace as a letter of introduction, which reads: "The private secretary is commanded by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth to acknowledge receipt of the letter from Mr. Olaechea, and to say that it has been passed on to the Home Office."

Funding for the group in part comes from the Peru Support Group of London, which is sponsored by Lord Avebury and England's Jesuit Provincial, Michael Campbell-Johnson. The Musical Guerrilla Army performs benefit concerts throughout Britain for the narco-terrorist gang, crooning such lyrics as, "The blood of the armed people nourishes the armed struggle." Other Ibero-American narco-terrorist groups on the State Department list, known to receive some form of British support, include the Colombian FARC and ELN, and the Peruvian MRTA.

López Portillo says, 'Support LaRouche!'

Former Mexican President José López Portillo (1976-82) issued this letter on Nov. 18, calling for U.S. citizens to give Presidential pre-candidate Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. their "timely recognition and support."

Former President of Mexico José López Portillo, Dec. 1, 1998.

Over the years, I have unfortunately seen confirmation that, absent the introduction of a superior principle of Justice—for which I fought during my term as President of the Republic of Mexico—which reorders the current international, monetary, and financial system, civilization, and with it tens of nations and millions of human beings are being flung into a vortex of calamities and chaos, which are in themselves unjustified and unnecessary, which not only insistently offend and trample on human dignity, but also continuously place international peace in danger.

Only the transformation of the current world order into one which places the inalienable rights of people as individuals, and of nations, at the center of fundamental decisions, can initiate a new era of prosperity, peace, and happiness—rights, such as to enjoy not only the freedom to create the material conditions of their existence, but, based on that, to fully develop their cultural, scientific, and human potential in general. Such a change can only be based on full confidence in that which is best in man, in reason, and the virtues which only the human species is capable of developing.

In the battle for such an order, I would like to recognize the tireless and generous efforts carried out by Lyndon H. LaRouche, for whom I hope for the best as a pre-candidate for the Presidency of the United States of America. I wish that his voice be listened to and followed by those in the world who have the grave responsibility of stopping this situation from continuing on its calamitous course, and I hope that his fellow U.S. citizens, who will elect their President in the coming elections, will give him their timely recognition and support.
