

vival is on the line. The actions we see in the foreclosure process are just a small part of the financial warfare directed against us. The empire’s puppets—from Obama on down, in Washington, and virtually all of Wall Street and the Boston Vault—must go. We must return to the concept of “of, by, and for the People.”

We had a chance in 2007 and 2008 with LaRouche’s Homeowners and Bank Protection Act, which would have stopped the foreclosures, and ripped legitimate banking functions from the clutches of the speculators. That effort, which had considerable public support, was sabotaged by “Bailout” Barney Frank and others. Had it passed, we would not be in the mess we are today. Those who blocked the HBPA on behalf of the empire, committed treason, if not by the letter of the law, then by the intent of the Constitution. They are not fit for public office—even in sanitation. They’re so corrupt they would probably contaminate the sewers.

What was a financial crisis, having been made far worse by the bailout scheme, has turned into a full-fledged breakdown crisis. We must bust up the imperial crime wave via Glass-Steagall. That will clean up the mess, but it still leaves us with a dying economy, which is where NAWAPA (the North American Water and Power Alliance) and LaRouche’s “platform” concept come in. Nothing less will work, anything less is a waste of time.

Finally, in closing, we have a suggestion for all the investigators looking into the foreclosure crisis. The devil is not in the details, but in the nature of the now-dead financial system. You are looking at a vast criminal conspiracy intended to destroy the United States, and the nation-state system itself, in favor of the re-establishment of the British Empire on a global scale.

You should also consider the possibility that the deliberate failure to follow legal document-recording standards has to do with more than just saving time and money. We suspect, knowing the nature of the empire, that what they were really doing is selling the same assets to more than one buyer. They will gladly take “paperwork” fines, to hide that. Don’t let them get away with it.

So, put away your Sherlock Holmes, and turn off “CSI,” and read Edgar Allan Poe’s “The Purloined Letter.” That is the method you will need to get to the bottom of these crimes. Look with your mind, not your senses.

LaRouche in 2007: Mortgage Fraud Can Topple System

Oct. 7—The shaking of the entire underpinnings of the U.S. mortgage market, due to massive numbers of fraudulent home foreclosures, compounded by the creation of the mortgage-backed securities (MBS) bubble, was anticipated by Lyndon LaRouche as far back as November of 2007. At that time, Federal Judge Christopher A. Boyko had dismissed 14 home foreclosure cases in Cleveland, Ohio, based on the doubt that the foreclosing bank, Deutsche Bank National Trust Co., actually held title to the houses which it was foreclosing. The judge ruled that there was no proper recording with local government officials, of the property titles, mortgage contracts, and assignment of ownership.

LaRouche commented at the time that this “smells of a major problem.” There is legitimate suspicion that loans that have not been recorded in local registries, have been sold as part of a securitized package, over and over again, leading to liabilities that exceed assets by enormous amounts. “These people have been caught with their pants down,” LaRouche declared.

LaRouche stressed that, implicitly, the Ohio case involved much more than the judge’s interpretation. The question posed is whether banks have been duplicating the use of assets. Any suspicion and doubt about this is enough in itself, to bring the system down.

When you are dealing with a situation like this, LaRouche said, you are dealing with a “breakdown crisis, and not with a management crisis.” This cannot be “managed.”

Even the smell of such a situation could blow the system out, LaRouche commented at that time. Due to the failure of Congress to enact LaRouche’s Homeowners and Bank Protection Act, and to revive Glass-Steagall, that is now precisely what is happening.
